Switch Property.

A tall man, followed by a boy whose face wore a terrible expression, walked into a real estate office the other day and asked the agent if he had any good business property for sale.

"Yes sir, I have a piece of west bottom on the rear of which a switch has recently been laid."

The boy rubbed himself and looked thoughtful and unhappy, while the tall man looking at the boy with a grim smile remarked: "It was no. I live a piece of that kind of property on hard now."

men are ought to be led into wild freaks, a matter by what name they are christened or not christened. The independence of the press is a principle which an independent newspaper proves its independence by keeping aloof from the bad and impractical suggestions of the ignorant and the selfish parties. It looks for the good in all parties and movements that affect the public, and it is not to be expected that it will ever promise the best results to the general warfare. It prefers the position of an adviser rather than of a partisan. It is not for the interest of the public demand it, it knows how to enter the lists in defense of the right, and it is not to be expected that it will ever acquiesce by pandering to its prejudices and caprices—when the "organ" flourished and the independent press was in its prime, it was a novelty of the day at one time, and had to win its spurs. But it conquered its place in public estimation, and it has acquired its position in the estimation of the people. It is true to its mission and keeps steadily in view the public welfare, and it will not be called upon to abdicate.

A Beecher Becreacher.

"Speaking of cleaver gossips," he said Mr. Beecher, "I have never heard of that good people twenty years ago on my name." Here he said, "The [the] called Mrs. Beecher, Ma," he said to Perkins: "I've forgotten the words of Mrs. Beecher, smiling out of her eyes, and she said, 'You're taking a bit of paper and language'."

Said a great Congregational preacher,

To a hen, "You're a beautiful creacher."

And the hen said, "You're a beautiful creacher."

Laid three eggs in his hat,

And thus did the hen reward Beecher.

THE ADVANTAGES

—OF—

BUYING IN THIS HEALTH-GIVING ADDITION:

When the Eighth Street Tunnel and the Riverview Cable are completed you can get to this delightful spot in less than 15 minutes by the Elevated Road, and for one 5-cent fare. When there you have a panoramic view of Wyandotte, Kansas City, Kas.; Kansas City, Mo.; Argentine, Armourdale, the Missouri and Kaw River Valleys, and Greystone Heights—a scene unequaled in the West—and you are nearer by half a mile to the Union Depot than the Wyandotte court house is. Riverview Boulevard and Riverview Cable run right through it and bring the country back of Wyandotte two miles nearer Kansas City, Mo. We predict a great future for the Riverview Boulevard, and believe that it will eventually make the great Business Street of Kansas City, Kas., instead of Minnesota Avenue.

TIME WILL BEAR US OUT.

Leonard Daniels, esq., who bought an entire block, will erect on it at once the finest residence in Wyandotte county. We platted this addition last Friday, and have sold since to Leonard Daniels, esq., 291 feet; Joseph Cahn, esq., 100 feet; Willis C. Brown, esq., 100 feet; Mrs. R. G. Benjamin, 100 feet; Sam R. Lipsis, 50 feet; Master Willie Benjamin, 50 feet; Mrs. S. Cahn, 50 feet; J. S. Johnson, esq., 50 feet.

THE -:- MONSTER -:- MOVEMENT!

The district represented by the adjoining map is to-day the greatest commercial center outside New York city in the United States. This statement may sound extravagant to one who has not investigated the situation in the West Bottoms, but its accuracy will be appreciated by business men. Where in the United States is there such a contracted and absolutely limited district which, with over 100 miles of switches, gives every foot of its territory access to 14 great railroads? This little triangle is literally as its shape suggests, the commercial heart of the great Southwest. It is situated exactly between Kansas City, Kas., and Kansas City, Mo., and is bounded beyond the possibility of expansion by rivers and bluffs. Already there is more money invested in substantial improvements in this triangle of a few acres than in all Kansas City outside. C. F. Morse, whose investment is peculiarly significant, has purchased $200,000 worth of this little triangle in the past week. There are enormous development schemes in store for the overlooked corner of this vital center, as Mr. Morse's wholesale investment clearly indicates. We believe there is 100 per cent in 90 days in anything we now offer. Our list is absolutely complete.
